OUR HISTORY

In 1958, newlyweds Ben and Virginia Ali invested their $5,000 savings to begin renovating an old building at 1213 U Street. Built in 1910, it first housed a silent movie house called the Minnehaha Theater. On August 22, 1958, Ben's Chili Bowl first opened its doors for business.

From the tumult of the late 1960's race riots to the tough times in the 70s and 80s, and finally to the revitalization of the U Street Corridor beginning in the 90s, Ben's has seen it all. Ben's Chili Bowl has won numerous awards and accolades, including the prestigious America's Classics Award from the James Beard Foundation and, more recently, Steve Harvey's Golden Spatula Award for Best Chili in America.

Ben's has been featured on Man vs. Food, CNN, Oprah, Anthony Bourdain's No Reservations, Good Morning America, Larry the Cable Guy, Pauly Shore, The Daily Show, and more, as well as films like Russel Crowe's

State of Play, Denzel Washington's The Pelican Brief, and Don Cheadle's Talk to Me. Many remember the news of President Obama stopping by to enjoy a chili half-smoke.

Countless celebrities, athletes and politicians express their love for Ben's Chili Bowl, and we truly appreciate each one of them. In the old days, we hosted Dr. Martin Luther King, Duke Ellington, Miles Davis and Ella Fitzgerald. More recently, we've had Jimmy Fallon, George Lopez, Chris Rock, Usher, Bono, Hillary Clinton, Tyrese, Larry King, Chris Tucker, George Clinton, Wale and Bryce Harper. The list goes on and on. While Ben's has become known as the place in DC to brush shoulders with celebs, everyone is special to us. To walk into Ben's is to become part of our family, and it has been that way since the beginning.

We are very thankful for the loyalty of all our guests, and we listened when you said, "Whatever you do, never change Ben's!" Our delicious homemade chili is still made with love, using the same secret recipe and only the freshest natural ingredients. We especially appreciate our regulars and sincerely thank you for over 55 years of love and support.
